

To whom it may concern:

Thomas had joined Bright Ascension for a three month summer internship in the tooling team from June to August 2022 and later continued on from this in a part time capacity until early January 2023.

During that time he worked on an internal project to progress our internal tooling software. I was impressed with his level of autonomy and ability to do the appropriate research surrounding the appointed tasks. Thomas integrated well into the team and participated in the various development processes with thoughtful inputs. He had a great attitude towards new challenges and expanding his skill set beyond the confines of university.

We were impressed with his work ethic and general attitude towards solving problems and in my opinion Thomas would be an asset to any software development team.

Sincerely,
